ALUCOBOND — the face of tomorrow today

ALUCOBOND® is a light composite material consisting of two aluminium cover sheets and a core made of polyethylene.

This simple but extremely versatile product concept has been developed to provide a façade material with a host of distinct advantages for architects: it is stable and yet flexible, has a smooth surface and is available in a number of standard or individual colours; it is weather-resistant, unbreakable, shock-resistant, vibration absorbent and easy to install.

Today's Homes and Lifestyle is one of 17 Canberra builders to be a part of the new Forde display village which is opening in August. We will be building the 'Seren—Architectural', a custom designed home featuring state of the art inclusions and finishes, including ALUCOBOND®. This panelling can be seen (below) on the front of the home to give it a unique and quality Today's Homes and Lifestyle finish. We are the only builders to use this product in the display village, as we like to add that extra special touch to our homes.

ALUCOBOND® is the original and the world's most widely recognised aluminium composite panel. It has a factory applied coil coated PVF2 paint finish; recognised and proven worldwide as the best architectural coating available today for all climatic and environmental conditions. It is available in 30 standard colours and is very cost effective, even in the most complex situations. It can be used as a fascia, as a cladding panel, for interiors or signage.
